“ Haven’t seen Danny in years but have thoughts of him often. Grew up around him. His momma Aunt Maggie was my Uncle Odell York’s sister. So not exactly what we were to each other but we were family come hell or high water cause that’s the way we grew up. So sorry we never saw each other much as we had kids and lived in different states most of the time. He was always so much fun!! Sure will keep you all in our thoughts and prayers. My daddy was Jay Hood. I’m Diane. RIP Danny. I will miss our childhood days and all our fun times hanging out with you, me and James Willie in our younger partying days as well.

“ Danny Gibbons was one of a kind. I met him about 20 yrs ago when I began working at Mr Ts (the old one, before it burned). When you printed powerball tickets -- if you made a mistake, you PAID for it... NO do overs.... I accidentally printed off 300.00 tickets when it was suppose to have been a $20 bet.

If I didn't sell those tickets by the time my shift ended, I was responsible for them... I was pissed... (And worried)...

Danny said " well what the hell is wrong with YOU tonight" (w/ his cool grin)

And I laughed....

I could've sworn NOTHING COULD make me laugh facing paying my WHOLE PAYCHECK for a stupid mistake.....

Danny made me laugh... Bc he was one of the most ENGAGING, GRACIOUS, INTERESTING, STORY TELLING, COOLEST PEOPLE I KNOW 😞😞😞 knew..

Oh I'm going to MISS THIS MAN.... MISS HIM 😞😞😞 THAT NIGHT HE said to me, "well , whatever you don't sell, ILL buy.... "

I couldn't believe it.. I'd never met this guy in my life... I wanted to cry. (But I didn't know if he was straight or not, y know?... A Lil suspicious.

Danny Gibbons sat there for 4+ hrs, ate, scratched tickets and at 11 when my shift ended I had 100.00 tickets I hadn't sold... He bought em... He DID!!!! And he never made me feel any kind of way about it.... He was a generous man. I have more stories . Omg I'm going to miss him. I miss him right now

Mike I'm so sorry 🙏🙏🙏
